Perth - one of Australia's most affordable cities for education

Perth is one of Australia's most affordable cities for education, irrespective of the school type according to exclusive research released today.

The ASG Planning for Education Index (developed in partnership with Monash University) estimates the total cost of a Government education in Perth will be $54,134 over a 13 period for a child starting school in 2019.

This is 21.2 per cent below the national average ($68,727), and $21,467 cheaper than Brisbane, home of Australia's most expensive Government education.

School fees ($379) make up a small fraction of the estimated total cost of a Government education each year in Perth, with transport ($313), camps ($320), external tuition ($573) and devices ($833) all adding to the estimated total cost.

The Index discovered a similar result for parents considering a Catholic education for their son or daughter, with the estimated total cost of a Catholic education in Perth ($109,097), 14.1 per cent below the national average ($127,027) and third only to Hobart ($96,290) and Darwin ($96,061) as Australia's most affordable city for a Catholic education.

The ASG research also discovered the estimated total cost of a Catholic education in Perth is $22,401 cheaper than Adelaide ($131,498), Australia's most expensive city for a Catholic education.

School fees ($3,351) are easily the most expensive component of a Catholic education in Perth, well ahead of other annual expenses including excursions ($257), uniforms ($417), transport ($417), external tuition ($507) and devices ($1,117).

The ASG Planning for Education Index also revealed the estimated total cost of an Independent education in Perth ($208,080) is 30.3 per cent below the national average ($298,689).

The estimated total cost of an Independent education in Perth is $253,919 cheaper than Sydney ($461,999), Australia's most expensive capital for an Independent education.

School fees are the most expensive part of an Independent education in Perth, costing parents approximately $9,320 per child per year, well ahead of camps ($328), external tuition ($398) and devices ($965).

The Index is based on data sourced from a survey of 2,300 members on ancillary costs conducted by ASG and public information on school fees – The Good Schools Guide and the My School Website. The data was consolidated and analysed by Monash University.

Amber Lewis's two children are about to start Year 7 and Year 10 at a Catholic high school in Perth.

"We'll spend at least $218,000 educating our children. It's a scary figure that's a bit overwhelming," Ms Lewis said.

"My husband and I have already spent $2,000 this year on a new laptop for our son.

"You can plan for school fees, but it's the hidden costs of education that take you by surprise, especially booklists, tutoring, uniforms and devices. It all adds up."

ASG CEO Ross Higgins said irrespective of Australia's high or low inflationary environment, the cost of education has risen at more than double the rate of inflation over the past decade.

"Education costs, including tuition costs, uniforms, transport and devices are demanding a far greater share of the family budget than in the past," Mr Higgins said.

"More than ever, the costs associated with education are placing more of a burden on Australian families, who are already challenged by the rising cost of living.

"With less discretionary money to spend, it's going to be very hard to pay for education, which means parents who have saved will be in a better position in the long run.

"ASG advocates parents use a disciplined approach to saving by putting in place a dedicated savings plan, so they can financially afford to meet their children's educational goals and aspirations.

"ASG has also developed a Cost Calculator tool which may assist you looking at this data as it applies to your circumstances."

Definitions

Schools can be differentiated by their affiliation, ownership and management, and are presented as two broad categories:

- Government schools are owned and managed by State and Territory governments;
- Non-Government schools (including Catholic or Independent schools) that are owned and managed by non-government establishments. These schools have associations with religious (faith based) or secular bodies (philosophical beliefs), or are entirely independent and have values maintained by the school.
