The cost of educating a child in Brisbane
*Most affordable city for private school education

Brisbane is the most affordable city in Australia to educate a child in a private school according to exclusive research released today.

The ASG Planning for Education Index shows for a child born in 2016 the forecast cost of a private education in Brisbane is $360,044, a massive $108,353 less than the national metropolitan average ($468,397).

Sydney ($552,351), Melbourne ($512,283), Canberra ($431,538) and Hobart ($421,309) are expected to be Australia's most expensive cities to educate a child in the private school system.

The results of the survey also reveal the cost of a government education in Brisbane is $58,843, 12 per cent less than the national metropolitan average ($66,862), but third only to Melbourne ($75,193) and Sydney ($73,063) as Australia's most expensive.

However, the survey discovers Brisbane is one of Australia's most expensive state capitals to educate a child in a systemic<sup>1</sup> school. For a child born in 2016 the forecast cost of a systemic education in Brisbane is $235,563, $5,182 more than the national metropolitan average ($230,381) and third only to Sydney ($240,768) and Adelaide ($239,053).

The ASG Planning for Education Index also forecasts preschool or kindergarten in Brisbane will cost parents between $2,774 and $8,330 depending on the school type.

Based on more than 12,500 responses, the index measures a range of variables including school fees, transport, uniforms, computers, school excursions and sporting trips to determine the cost of education.

Interestingly, the cost of certain variables measured as part of the ASG Planning for Education Index have not increased over the past year. For example, the costs for computers and transport costs, including the price of fuel, have declined compared to last year, while the cost of books has remained stable.

ASG member and mother of three boys, Victoria Francis says she couldn't afford to send William (year four) and Daniel (year 2) to a top tier independent school, but a Catholic education was within financial reach.

"William is very academic, he's one of the top boys in his class and he loves reading and writing. This year, he will also have a tablet as part of his learning. I always told myself if my children showed interest, I'd give them the best opportunity to learn and in the best environment.

"I enrolled my children with ASG when they were born and now we don't really notice the money that comes out each month. If I was expected to produce the money as a bulk amount when they start high school, I wouldn't have it but with ASG it's a small enough amount each week that we don't miss it. That's the beauty of this kind of investment."

ASG CEO John Velegrinis says the cost of education continued to rise at more than twice the rate of inflation over the past decade.

“Regardless of whether you send your children to a government, systemic or private school, the costs of that education will clearly increase which is why we advocate that parents start planning for education as early as possible, even from the moment their child is born.

“We’re very fortunate in Australia to have a variety of excellent government, systemic and private schools. If you have two or three children, the cost of a private education in Brisbane could be higher than the purchase price of the family home. We advocate parents use a disciplined approach by putting a little bit away each week so they financially can afford their children’s educational goals and aspirations.”

Independent statistician and Managing Director of foreseechange Charlie Nelson says the current economic climate is having an effect on education.

“A sudden increase in education costs would certainly be painful in the current low income growth environment.

“With school fees increasing faster than incomes, it has never been more important for parents to financially plan for their child’s future as early as possible.”

A very small number of responses were received from the Northern Territory in the most recent survey. As such, the provision of cost estimates for the Northern Territory in isolation would be highly unreliable and therefore have not been included. It is recommended that those in the Northern Territory refer to the national figures or the figures for adjoining states as a basis for planning.

Editor's notes

ASG conducts the Planning for Education Index annually, asking parents to estimate education costs, which cover preschool, primary and secondary schools in Australia. This survey includes 12,500 responses relating to the number of responses acquired from a combination of the 2013 and 2015 surveys. Data from both surveys has been combined to increase the sample size and precision of the estimates. The 2015 estimates reported are an average of the data acquired in the 2015 survey and the 2013 data, adjusted for inflation using known ABS CPI increases.

*ASG is a member owned organisation, helping to create educational opportunities for children. ASG has been helping families and their children for more than 40 years. During this time, more than 520,000 children have been enrolled with ASG and more than $2.3 billion in education benefits and scholarship payments returned to members.
