The cost of educating a child in Adelaide
*Adelaide one of the most affordable cities for private and public education

Adelaide is one of the most affordable cities to educate a child in a private or public school according to exclusive research released today.

The ASG Planning for Education Index shows the cost of a private education in Adelaide is forecast to be $365,976, a massive $102,421 less than the national metropolitan average ($468,397) and second only to Brisbane ($360,044) as Australia's most affordable private education system.

The cost of a government education in Adelaide is estimated to be $57,459, $9,403 less than the national metropolitan average ($66,862), and well below Australia's most expensive capitals for a government education, Melbourne ($75,193), Sydney ($73,063) and Brisbane ($58,843).

However, Adelaide is one of the most expensive cities in Australia to educate a child in a systemic<sup>1</sup> school. The estimated cost of a systemic education in Adelaide is $239,053, $8,672 more than the national metropolitan average ($230,381) and second only to Sydney ($240,768) as Australia's most expensive metropolitan city.

The index also forecasts preschool or kindergarten in Adelaide will cost parents between $2,774 and $8,330 depending on the school type.

Based on more than 12,500 responses, the index measures a range of variables including school fees, transport, uniforms, computers, school excursions and sporting trips to determine the cost of education.

Interestingly, the cost of certain variables measured as part of the ASG Planning for Education Index have not increased over the past year. For example, the costs for computers and transport costs, including the price of fuel, have declined compared to last year, while the cost of books has remained stable.

ASG member and father of one, Stephen Morris says he wanted to give his son, who attends an Anglican school, the best educational opportunities with an international flavour.

"Both my wife and I would have preferred to send our son Fraser (year 11) to a public school, but where we live in the southern suburbs, the choices are quite restrictive and we wanted him to attend a school which offers the BaccaLaureate program. This opens the door for international exchanges and you'll find there are students in both primary and high schools from Japan, Germany and Korea, which is a good way for kids to understand different cultures.

"With the kids going to private school, education costs money, with overseas exchange trips and sporting events. Fraser recently went to an interstate schools' volleyball competition, so the costs add up. We joined ASG because saving for a well-rounded education is a priority for us and we've made sacrifices along the way, like living in a modest small house and not buying cars very often."

ASG CEO John Velegrinis says the cost of education continued to rise at more than twice the rate of inflation over the past decade.

"Regardless of whether you send your children to a government, systemic or private school, the costs of that education will clearly increase which is why we advocate that parents start planning for education as early as possible, even from the moment their child is born.

"We're very fortunate in Australia to have a variety of excellent government, systemic and private schools. If you have two or three children, the cost of a private education in Adelaide could be higher than the purchase price of the family home. We advocate parents use a disciplined approach by putting a little bit away each week so they can financially afford their children's educational goals and aspirations."

Independent statistician and Managing Director of foreseexchange Charlie Nelson says the current economic climate is having an effect on education.

"A sudden increase in education costs would certainly be painful in the current low income growth environment.

"With school fees increasing faster than incomes, it has never been more important for parents to financially plan for their child's future as early as possible."

A very small number of responses were received from the Northern Territory in the most recent survey. As such, the provision of cost estimates for the Northern Territory in isolation would be highly unreliable and therefore have not been included. It is recommended that those in the Northern Territory refer to the national figures or the figures for adjoining states as a basis for planning.

Editor's notes

ASG conducts the Planning for Education Index annually, asking parents to estimate education costs, which cover preschool, primary and secondary schools in Australia. This survey includes 12,500 responses relating to the number of responses acquired from a combination of the 2013 and 2015 surveys. Data from both surveys has been combined to increase the sample size and precision of the estimates. The 2015 estimates reported are an average of the data acquired in the 2015 survey and the 2013 data, adjusted for inflation using known ABS CPI increases.

*ASG is a member owned organisation, helping to create educational opportunities for children. ASG has been helping families and their children for more than 40 years. During this time, more than 520,000 children have been enrolled with ASG and more than $2.3 billion in education benefits and scholarship payments returned to members.
