Private school education most affordable in REGIONAL SOUTH AUSTRALIA

Regional South Australia is the most affordable region in Australia to educate a child at a private school according to exclusive research released today.

The ASG Planning for Education Index discovered for a child born in 2017 the forecast cost of a private education in regional South Australia is $295,924<sup>1</sup>, $45,887 less than the national regional average ($341,811).

The research found the cost of a systemic<sup>2</sup> education in regional South Australia is estimated to be $197,508, 11 per cent or $18,815 above the national regional average ($178,693) and second only to regional Queensland ($199,328) as Australia's most expensive region for a systemic education.

The index is better for parents who plan to send their children to regional South Australian government schools. The forecast cost of a government education in regional South Australia is $50,079, $1869 less than the national regional average ($51,948), and considerably more affordable when compared to the nation's most expensive, regional Victoria ($54,510) and regional New South Wales ($53,806).

The ASG Planning for Education Index also forecasts preschool or kindergarten in Australia could cost parents between $2818 and $8506 per year depending on the school type.

The survey also discovered that the estimated cost of a private education across regional Australia has soared by 61 per cent in the past decade. For a child born in 2017 the forecast cost of a private education across regional Australia is $341,811, a jump of $130,148 compared to a child born in 2007 ($211,663).

The estimated cost of a regional systemic education has also skyrocketed by 52 per cent over the same period to $178,693, while the estimated cost of a government education in regional Australia has climbed 19 per cent over the decade to $51,948.

Based on more than 12,500 responses, the index calculates a range of variables including school fees, transport, uniforms, computers, school excursions and sporting trips to determine the cost of education.

School fees, the cost of extracurricular activities including excursions and uniforms have all risen in the past year, however computers and transport costs have fallen when compared to 2016.

ASG member and Callington mother Brianna McAvaney says education is getting more and more expensive especially with four children, Charlotte (year 6), Lucy (year 4), Olivia (reception) and Jack (2 years old).

"Schools expect you to buy computers and laptops and camps aren't local anymore, they're to Canberra and overseas. All the costs add up, but we want to give our children all the opportunities and say 'yes' to everything.

Being with ASG is helping us out financially and easing the burden of whatever our children choose to do. Next year Charlotte will be in high school so we'll start visiting all the schools, both public and private and see where Charlotte feels she'll do best so she can enjoy her education and be happy."

ASG CEO John Velegrinis says the cost of education has risen at two and a half times the rate of inflation over the past decade.

"Our research predicts the cost of education will increase, irrespective of whether you send your child to a government, systemic or private school.

The estimated cost of a government education across regional Australia has jumped $8443 in the past decade. That is why we encourage parents to start planning for education as early as possible, even from the moment their child is born."

Mr Velegrinis says Australians are fortunate to have excellent government, systemic and private schools to choose from, but costs can spiral out of control.

"If you have three children, the cost of educating them in South Australia's regional private education system could reach nearly $900,000. That's more than the purchase price of the average family home.

We advocate parents use a disciplined approach by putting a little bit away each week so they can financially afford to meet their children's educational goals and aspirations."

Independent statistician and Managing Director of foreseexchange Charlie Nelson says a range of economic factors influence the cost of education.

"Employment growth, hourly wages and inflation all impact the cost of living, which puts extra strain on the family budget.

With school fees likely to rise further, it has never been more important for parents to financially plan for their child's future."

A very small number of responses were received from the Northern Territory in the most recent survey. As such, the provision of cost estimates for the Northern Territory in isolation would be highly unreliable and therefore have not been included. It is recommended that those in the Northern Territory refer to the national figures or the figures for adjoining states as a basis for planning. These figures are the average estimated costs and represent the highest amount parents and families could expect to pay. ASG cannot guarantee that they will represent the actual costs of education for a particular child.
